LITTLE DOING IN WASHINGTON

Senators Aldrich and Hale Announce Their Intention of Retiring from Public Life

The past week has furnished nothing startling from a legislative or an executive point of view at the capital of the United States. But there is not the slightest abatement of interest in the political situation which is seriously discussed wherever men of information and prominence in political affairs come together. The election of Havens, Democrat, in New York, to succeed Perkins, republican, deceased, and this election reversing a 10,000 republican majority by a 5,000 democratic majority, practically changing 15,000 votes, is regarded as extremely significant of general dissatisfaction with the national political situation and program. As far as can be discerned, the dissatisfaction is mainly with the tariff bill of the special session and the president's persistent approval of it. It seems to be in vain that Senator Aldrich and Representative Payne and the president point to the fact that the revenues of the government are increasing and that there is fair prosperity under the present tariff. The election in New York, coming so quickly upon the heels of Foss's victory in Massachusetts, is regarded as indicative of a nation-wide movement which some say only Roosevelt can stem. Others ask, "Will Roosevelt be able to stem it? Will he not join it?" Time alone can tell. It is certain that the country is following the triumphant procession of Roosevelt in Europe more closely than the stand pat attitude of the president in Washington.

During the week the episode of the visit of the editor of the New York American, William Randolph Hearst, to Washington, his long interview with the president and his subsequent eulogy of Taft given out to the press, has been much commented on. He was received at the capitol by members and senators with, it appears, almost as much enthusiasm as was Bryan a few days before. There are those who say that Mr. Hearst is playing for the presidential nomination in 1912.

Much interest and significance is attached to the announcement by Senators Aldrich and Hale that their senatorial terms will by their own volition end on the 4th of March next. These senators are the head of the little coterie in the senate that has very completely ruled in that highest legislative body for a long term of years. Mr. Hale, I believe, is seventy-four years old and Mr. Aldrich sixty-eight. They belong rather to a past political era than that of the present. They are both in a degree provincial, "down-East" statesmen and are not in accord with the broader, more modern and more progressive sentiment of the nation. The oncoming younger class of statesmen more nearly represent the feeling of the nation with reference to domestic and foreign policies.

There continues to be considerable interest in the question of an international exposition to celebrate the completion of the inter-oceanic canal at Panama. New Orleans, San Diego, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Washington are all reaching out for the exposition. Considerable rivalry is already apparent and these five cities are looking toward congress for money. Congress has had much experience with expositions at Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Buffalo, New Orleans and Seattle. All these were in a sense provincial expositions. It is time and meet that we should have a distinctively national exposition. The city of Washington has reached that degree of expansion and prominence that even if it were not the capital of the country, it would be entitled to celebrate an event so emphatically national. It is time that the European and Asiatic world, and I may say the American world also, should learn that there is a capital of the United States. The government at the capital should celebrate the most stupendous accomplishment in the completion of the greatest work ever undertaken by man. There is but one logical place for such a celebration. It can be held at Washington at one-half the expense, not only to the nation, but to the hundreds of thousands that will visit it, as compared with the other cities mentioned. The foreign countries that will send exhibits of art and manufactures to the exposition can do it more effectively and economically by landing them at Washington than by sending them across the continent to San Francisco or Los Angeles, or by the Gulf to New Orleans.

THE BEST RATION FOR HOGS

Experiments by College of Agriculture Prove
Mixed Diet Superior to Corn Alone

In a recent bulletin the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri has published the results of a number of swine feeding experiments, by E. B. Forbes.

These experiments prove that corn—good corn—is a good feed for any animal and that there is no reason for withholding it from any animal needing food. At the same time, it is shown that corn alone is not nearly so good or so profitable a feed as corn supplemented by some proteid food such as tankage, linseed oilmeal, or soy beans.

In hogs fed exclusively on corn the animal becomes very fat and chubby and does not develop properly; the bones are brittle and easily broken.

Sixty-five hogs were used in this experiment and they were divided into lots of five each. Twelve different rations were used with corn alone in two of them and corn supplemented with some other feed in the others.

The hogs fed on corn and linseed oilmeal and those fed on corn and tankage gained the most; those receiving corn alone were most unsatisfactory.

A full account of this work, "The Effect of Rations on the Development of Swine," may be obtained free by writing for Bulletin No. 81 to F. B. Mumford, Director of Agricultural Experiment Station, Columbia, Missouri.

A large delegation from Brookfield attended the high school commencement Friday evening.

Or how would you like to grind from 5 to 10 bushels of corn for one cent! How would you like to shred your corn for 25 cents per acre! How would you like to saw your wood for 5 cents or less per load! How would you like to have an engine at the price and expense of one horse, that will do as much work as five! In other words, can you afford to be without an engine! The negative wins. You need an engine and must have the best—an Olds.
